From historic landmarks to lively music venues, Cork has a lot of hidden gems. There's something for everyone; whether you're looking for theater, art galleries, food festivals, or outdoor activities.

You can easily explore all that Cork has to offer and have an unforgettable experience right from our doorstep.

The image shows the interior of a bar named 'The Dean'. The backbar is a prominent feature, filled with various bottles of spirits and beer. The bar counter is made of a light-colored material, possibly marble or quartz. In the foreground, there are several tables and chairs. The chairs have a distinctive blue and white pattern. The lighting is warm and ambient, with track lighting on the ceiling and a lamp on the bar. The walls are a dark green color with a vertical ribbed texture. The overall atmosphere is modern and sophisticated.

SUSTAINABILITY

The Dean Hotel Group is committed to building a sustainable future for the hospitality industry and Ireland. Working with key industry partners, our sustainability policy outlines a three-year roadmap towards a more sustainable future with ambitious targets and goals to reduce our carbon footprint, preserve natural resources, support biodiversity, and contribute to a more sustainable future for Ireland and the planet. This policy focuses on three key pillars: Waste, Energy and Biodiversity.

The Dean Cork's building achieved BER rating of B1 and used natural gas in the heating. The project redevelops a brown field site and is a multiuse development. The mix of uses adds to the amenities in the area providing the local new and old community with additional facilities such as bars, restaurants, retail and gym essential to a sustainable neighbourhood. Beside 'The Dean Hotel' the public realm is developed with steps to create easier access from Horgan's Quay up onto Lower Glanmire Road and further up to St. Luke's Cross.

'The Dean' Hotel now marks the entrance to the Railway Station and the new North Docklands Development, while also addressing the objectives of the City Development Plan as an appropriate location for a new city area.
